CLASS DESCRIPTION

The IEC Effective Leadership Skills course stemmed from an important area of need that was expressed by our member contractors and chapters. This new course will address the number one issue contractors and chapters are experiencing with young electrical apprentices today teaching them how to work effectively and efficiently on-the-job with coworkers, managers, and clients by strengthening their social, communication, and interpersonal skills. This course is also geared towards sub-foremen looking to advance to foreman and new foremen seeking to formalize their training as a foreman.

This course includes different case studies, animations and supplemental materials.

About the Instructor

Mike Basham has over 35 years of experience in the electrical industry with 20 years of experience as an electrical apprenticeship and lab instructor.

Graduated electrical apprenticeship in 1989.

Held positions as Journeyman, Foreman, Project Manager, Sr. Project Manager, Vice President, and Business Owner.

SME (Subject Matter Expert) for NCCER from 1996-2000

National Instructor of the Year 2000
